Your First Day

What the first Tuesday actually looks like

"It is the glory of God to conceal a matter, but the glory of kings is to search it out."

Version 1.0

The first day is not a normal Tuesday. Here's what to expect, so nothing is a surprise.

Arrive at 8:45

Belongings go neatly along the entryway wall, then students head straight to the Main Room.

Teachers are in the building from 8:30. There's no need to arrive earlier than 8:45 — we'll still be setting up.

The first hour is different

We open with worship and prayer over the year. Everyone together, and every adult stands and is named, so your student knows who's who by the end of it.

Then we walk the fire route. On foot, the whole way, to the shed behind the building. Attendance is taken there. Every student should be able to answer "where do we go?" without being told — that's the point of doing it on day one rather than reading it off a page.

Then expectations — the same talk for every age. Students in grade 7 and up sign their own pledge in the room. Grade 6 and under bring it home for a parent to sign and return the following week.

Classes are short on the first day

That opening hour replaces first period. The first class starts at 10:00, and the blocks run shorter than usual so everything still fits.

Nobody falls behind because of it. The normal schedule begins the second Tuesday.

Lunch is on us

The first day only. From the second Tuesday onward, students bring their own lunch.

Snacks come from home every week, including the first.

Pickup at 1:45

Cleanup starts at 1:30 sharp, and every student has a station — it's part of the day, not an afterthought. We close with prayer, then dismiss at 1:45.
